About Washington D.C. and Baltimore

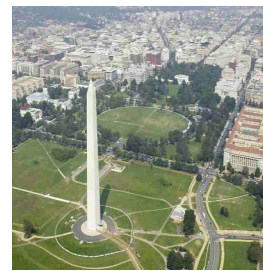

Washington DC

Washington DC is home to 572,000 people in the city itself and 5.4 million people in the greater metropolitan area. At the center of the city's four quadrants is the U.S. capitol, a powerful symbol of our nation's freedom and democracy. A strong spirit of service fills this diverse community. Volunteers are needed to serve and assist residents who tend to fall between the cracks. More than 16,000 people are homeless in Washington D.C. during the course of a year. Several community development initiatives are underway to help families find employment and affordable housing and lend support to the large number of children (38.6 percent) living in poverty.

Baltimore

working-class port town, Baltimore has sometimes been dubbed a "city of neighborhoods," with over 300 identified districts traditionally occupied by distinct ethnic groups. The population of Baltimore is an estimated 631,000. An estimated 23% of the population live in poverty. Baltimore is a diverse city filled with many ethnicities and cultures. Baltimore offers tremendous opportunities to serve.

A Glimpse of the week long ministry in Washington D.C. and Baltimore

The following is a projected schedule and may change.

Friday: We will depart and arrive in D.C.

Saturday: We will take the day to tour parts of D.C.

Sunday: We will attend a local church in the morning. In the afternoon we will meet with the YOM staff and meet the other teams working in D.C. for the week.

Monday—Thursday: students will be broken into their ministry teams and will serve in their various locations depending on their ministry area.

Students will be broken into small groups and will serve at Christ House a few hours each.

Friday: Pack up and head home

Students will actively be serving Monday—Thursday. Students will have free time around dinner to relax and enjoy being in D.C. and Baltimore.

Tuesday and Thursday nights we will meet with the other teams for a time of worship and sharing.

Monday and Wednesday nights: We will gather as a team for worship and sharing.
